Curtis Uhlemann in
The Warriors, A Love Story.

that never felt wrong.

Back at the Zoo Southside, almost as moving – and certainly as absorbing – was The Warriors: A Love Story by Texas-based ARCOS Dance. It tells the true story of the love and marriage of American soldier-philosopher J Glenn Gray and German dancer Ursula Gray following World War II through a forceful mix of dance, film, interviews and live music from their grandson Eliot, who also appeared in the piece. Choreographers Curtis Uhlemann and Erica Gionfriddo never try to do too much, focusing on just a few events and quotes that the cast brought to life with aplomb. It also raises more than a few questions about war and who is the enemy that are still pertinent today.
